Message from the Superintendent

Dear Colleagues,

Outside of a parent or guardian, nothing impacts student learning more than an effective teacher. One of the best ways we can value teaching professionals is by simply protecting their time to do the important work entrusted to them. I'm launching a new workgroup focused on improving conditions for teachers.

The Let Teachers Teach Workgroup will identify and develop possible solutions to classroom disruptions such as excessive training and paperwork, scripted lessons, and student discipline. These are common concerns I've heard from educators through our formal engagement channels such as my Superintendent's Teacher Advisory Council and informal channels such as our school visits and faculty meetings.

The workgroup will include PK-12 teachers from across the state. We're working with our various teacher committees and Louisiana education organizations to identify teachers for the workgroup. Recommendations from organizations should be emailed to ldoecommunications@la.gov. Current Louisiana Teacher of the Year and East Baton Rouge Parish Schools teacher Kylie Altier will chair the workgroup.

I look forward to working alongside Louisiana teachers to improve this valued profession.

Dr. Cade Brumley
State Superintendent of Education
